Subject: Justice in Aging's Dignity for All: Ensuring Economic Security as America Ages

On Tuesday, November 15, Justice in Aging hosted a forum focused on how advocates and policy makers can work together to address the health and economic security issues affecting older adults. At Dignity For All: Ensuring Economic Security as America Ages, three panels of academics, advocates, and service providers shared data, stories, and policy recommendations to raise awareness of the issue of senior poverty and inspire action to improve the health and economic security of older adults.

It was truly inspiring to see so many wonderful partners there, feel the energy in the room, and listen to our speakers provide stats, stories, and a path forward for all of us who work in the aging space. A special highlight was hearing from Representative Jan Schakowsky (D-IL) about her commitment to fighting for America's seniors.

We'll be posting the video recordings from the event on our website soon. In the meantime, you can access the slides, see photos, and check out the

In addition, Center for American Progress released a new report at the event. Toward a Dignified Retirement for All outlines policy solutions to ensure all Americans can age in dignity. You can download it here.
