Historical Information

Historical Information:

This bridge carries a 2 lane highway over an abandoned rail line in rural setting. Rail line is former branch of the Southern Rwy. between Kershaw and Camden, abandoned in the mid-1980s. Line established in the late 1880s by the Charleston, Cincinnati & Chicago RR. Portions of the route were only completed between Marion, NC and Camden. Line was later absorbed into the Southern Rwy. system and served as a very minor branch line. The rail line is not historically significant, and the 1948 bridge, built by the state highway department as a typical grade crossing improvement project, has no significant historic associations with railway developments.
