

South Carolina Chefs Invited to Enter Culinary Competition

South Carolina chefs are invited to apply to enter the Taste of the Tidelands culinary competition to be held on January 24, 2003 at Pawleys Plantation Conference Center in Pawleys Island, SC. Deadline for applications is November 1, 2002.

Presented by the Pawleys Island-Litchfield Business Association and Restaurant Solutions, the Taste of the Tidelands is coordinated and hosted by Peter Ryan, consultant and director of the event. Established to encourage creativity in the culinary arts, the event was also designed to promote tourism through the restaurant industry and generate funds for culinary arts scholarships and for charities. Proceeds from the 2001 event were donated to the Ernst Royal Scholarship for Carolinians, which was established to enable South Carolina chefs to attend the Culinary Arts Institute and to the Uniformed Firefighters Association Widow's and Children's Fund of New York along with several local charities.

In addition to many awards presented at the Taste of the Tidelands, chefs are offered an opportunity to compete for the "Serving South Carolina Quality Chef of the Year" award, presented by the South Carolina Department of Agriculture. Chefs who meet the criteria for participating in the Taste of the Tidelands competition are invited to prepare and serve a dish using South Carolina grown or processed products. Each entry is judged by a distinguished panel on taste, presentation, and creativity.

This past year's winner of the Serving South Carolina Quality Chef of the Year award was Chef Michael Wallace with the Hilton Oceanfront Resort for his Carolina Crab cakes presented with fried green tomatoes and served with Creole mustard aioli.

South Carolina products stand on their own, but as Ferdinand Metz, former President of the Culinary Institute of America, would say, "Preparation is everything." Even though there can only be one "Serving South Carolina Quality Chef of the Year" recipient at the Taste of the Tidelands, all of the competing chefs are winners for serving South Carolina products on their menus.

An Epicurean buffet for food lovers who delight in sampling the entries is open to the public following the competition. Tickets may be purchased by calling 843-237-4774.

Deadline for chefs to apply to enter the Taste of the Tidelands competition which includes the "Serving South Carolina Quality Chef of the Year" award is November 1, 2002. For more information, contact Kim Fox at The Litchfield Company, 843-237-4000 or toll free 800-476-2861.

Sunbelt Ag Expo - October 15-17

Established in 1978 at Spence Field in Moultrie, Ga., the Sunbelt Agricultural Exposition will celebrate its 25th Anniversary this year October 15-17 in Moultrie, Ga.

This year over 30 companies will mark their silver anniversary exhibiting at the Expo. While honoring its past, the Expo will continue its strong focus on the future by showcasing the latest in agricultural innovation and technology.

"As American agriculture continually changes, the one constant is the Sunbelt Expo," said Ricky Brown, vice president of Brown Manufacturing Corp, a 25-year exhibitor. "It is the one place where you can show your new product to 200,000 visitors in a three-day period."

The Sunbelt Expo is the largest farm show in the world with on-site field demonstrations. Shuttles transport visitors to Harvesting and Tillage Demonstrations on the show's 600-acre working farm. With over 1100 exhibitors displaying their products and services, the Expo offers something for the entire family. The Turf industry will find sod harvester demos in the fields, a new reverse tiller, and a variety of sprig planters. For the growing interest in Vegetable production, the Expo will showcase a new seed planter that can plant any size seed and a prototype of an automatic vegetable transplanter.

The Livestock Pavilion abounds this year with a combination of advanced and fundamental products for ranchers. Visitors will learn more about the field of beef and dairy genetics—utilizing elite bulls of all breeds—and the use of external ultrasound for pregnancy check, rib eye measurement, fat depth, and marbling in cattle. Tried-and-true products have been improved for convenience—such as the latest portable, low-maintenance cattle guards.

Agriculture Counts 2002

Much of what we do in life depends on counting in one way or another. We count our money, our blessings, friends, and some find it comforting to count sheep.

Counting farms in the Census of Agriculture has been conducted approximately every five years since 1920. The US Department of Agriculture, National Agricultural Statistics Service (State of fice: SC Agricultural Statistics Service) is required by law to conduct the Census of Agriculture. The census is the only source of uniform, comprehensive data on agricultural production and operator characteristics for each county, state and the nation. From 1840 to 1920, the Census of Agriculture was taken every 10 years. Now, the census is taken in those years ending in 2 and 7 to coincide with other economic censuses.

The 25th Census of Agriculture process is scheduled to begin in mid December with the mailing of questionnaires to agricultural producers to collect data for the 2002 calendar year. Completed reports will be due from each farmer and rancher by February 3, 2003.

All farms which produced or normally would be expected to produce agricultural products valued at $1,000 or more during the 2002 calendar year will receive census questionnaires. The forms will request information on the amount of land in farms, land use practices, farm and operator characteristics, sales, expenditures, machinery and equipment, livestock, poultry, dairy production and crops harvested. Title 7 of the U.S. Code which requires farmers and ranchers to report in the census also protects the privacy of their reports. Only employees sworn to confidentiality under a penalty of law may see report forms. No one else can obtain individual reports. The information is used for statistical purposes, and only summary information is published.

If you produce or sell agricultural products, I urge you to complete a census report. The cumulative data is very important in drafting legislation to resolve agricultural problems. State and local governments also use the data in planning rural development, agricultural research, and extension programs. Farm organizations use the information to develop and evaluate programs and policies that affect farmers and ranchers. Farm cooperatives and agribusinesses use the data to aid in relocating or expanding, locating service and distribution centers, allocating research funds, forecasting markets, and making advertising or other marketing decisions to support farmers. Commodity and trade associations use the census data to devise farm programs and policy proposals. Extension planners and economists also make extensive use of the data to better serve farmer and community needs. It is important to note that the cumulative data is used by these entities, not individual reports.

The diversity of agriculture in the United States is unmatched anywhere in the world, and so is the intricacy of the system that moves raw products from farms through manufacturers who process the goods, to wholesalers and retailers, and on to consumers themselves. Each industry in agriculture relies on market forces to move agricultural products through the marketing chain. Our producers need timely, and accurate information to plan marketing strategies for a successful future, and the five-year Census of Agriculture gives us a good road map to formulate those plans.

Again, I ask that all who farm in South Carolina, complete the census form and return it promptly to the appropriate address by February 3, 2003. South Carolina's economic health and vitality depend on your participation and cooperation. Good, accurate reporting by our farm families, especially in this census, is vitally important to agricultural and rural economic development for all who are involved in the business of our nation's largest industry---agriculture.

While we in the Palmetto State are counting our agricultural assets in this Census of Agriculture, join with me in counting our blessings for an abundant, reliable supply of agricultural products. Because you are counted, others can count on you.

Sunbelt Expo

In the Forestry area, there is an increased emphasis on management-planning tools--which include inspection, evaluation, and mapping services. Responding to the move toward integrating forestry with Wildlife Management, the Expo will also provide information on market analysis and habitat enhancement--with Steve McKenna presenting seminars on planting food plots for wildlife.

Hunting and Fishing enthusiasts will be introduced to an array of products to serve their needs--such as a two-man bass boat, a floating dock, and trailers that convert to deer stands. The show's popular ATV section will broaden its selection again this year with utility vehicles for specific uses. New on the market are the Clays Car, developed primarily for sporting clays courses, and the Shuttlebug, an exciting concept in wheelchair travel. And the Lawn and Garden section is not just for mowers anymore. Look for genetically superior black walnut trees and a portable worm composter.

The Expo's Family Living building will have a potpourri of utilitarian and artistic items to enhance everyone's day-to-day activities. Kitchen Craft is sponsoring live demonstrations on specialty kitchen equipment for healthy gourmet cooking. American Memory Prints offers a trip down memory lane with its antique tractor art.

Edu-tainment rounds out the Expo's roster, with:

- A perennial favorite—the American Grand Finals sheep/cattle stock dog trials;
- A "Wheel of Energy" game show sponsored by Georgia's Electric Cooperatives;
- Performances by the Georgia 4-H Clovers Etc. and Abraham Baldwin College's dance team and jazz choir/band.

Florida, the spotlight state for 2002, will promote its theme "Florida is America's Garden" with several educational and hands-on displays. The Sunbelt Expo will welcome Florida Agriculture Commissioner Charles Bronson as the keynote speaker at the show's annual noon luncheon.

The Sunbelt Expo hours are 8:30 am to 5 pm Tuesday and Wednesday and 8:30 am to 4 pm on Thursday. Admission is $5 per person/per day. Children 6 and under are admitted free with parent. The show site, Spence Field, is located four miles southeast of U.S. Highway 319 on Highway 133 near Moultrie, Ga.
