SPOTLIGHT

Kansas Lt. Governor Jeff Colyer
His Vision as He Prepares for Succession
Excerpted & summarized from KSNT (7-30-17)

Kansas will likely be getting a new Governor. The White House announced plans to nominate the governor as Ambassador-at-Large of International Religious Freedom. The governor ... will resign to take the job in the administration.

KSNT News sat down with Lt. Gov. Jeff Colyer who is set to replace (the governor) should he be confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

Lt. Governor Colyer ... (said) he was concerned with the 'tone' of Kansas politics. ... "Topeka needs to shout less and listen more, and that is what I'll do."

He did distance himself (from the governor). "He is my friend and he is going to be a great ambassador in a very sensitive position," said Lt. Governor Colyer. "But I'm my own man."

Away from the Statehouse, Lt. Governor Colyer is a craniofacial plastic surgeon. He regularly performs free surgeries for needy people in Kansas and also across the world as part of the International Medical Corps. The lieutenant governor said he's volunteered in more than 20 different war zones in the last 25 years.

Lt. Governor Colyer spoke at the NLGA Annual Meeting on Medicaid and Medicaid reform just hours before his pending succession was announced.

Q; What are Ambassadors at Large? A: From U.S. State Dept. Historian
From the earliest days of the Republic, Presidents designated special diplomatic envoys for specific assignments, primarily overseas. The President appointed the first official to bear the title of Ambassador at Large on Mar 12, 1949, under the authority vested in Article II, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution that empowers the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers, and Consuls.
