If this doesn't make you smile on Monday -- I don't know what will! So far this year we have had 106 sea turtle nests on Hunting Island, of which 57 nests have already hatched. Thanks to nature center specialist, Sam Pettit for the awesome pic!

Becky Baldwin Allowed!! Michelle Beasley, you need a refresher course in science. Our coast is subject to man made and natural erosion factors such as hurricanes, even big weather fronts, that cause abnormally higher tides , heavy rains and wind. This erodes the beaches and thus island interiors such as roads and structures. The state did not allow it, and please remember they have put monies into it and other areas on the coast. I believe even volunteers helped to get Hunting Island to this state.

Connie Webb Becky Baldwin thanks. I know many of us love HI, but it is a barrier island, one of the most transient of geological land forms. Visit, appreciate and help HI while you can.
