"Looking after your spectacles is a vital part of getting the most out of them. It is important to remember that your lenses are precision products that will not give optimum performance if they are damaged or out of alignment".

Guidelines to Patient

1. Always use both hands to wear and remove spectacles
2. Whenever spectacles are not in use store them in the case provided to you by the optician
3. To avoid scratching, place spectacles with the lenses facing up
4. Periodically get your spectacles adjusted according to your face
5. End of the day rinse the spectacles under running tap water and wipe it dry using dust free, lint free soft material
6. Do not use paper towels, silicone tissues, facial tissues or old rags that may have embedded dirt, which may scratch the lenses
7. Use only Micro-fiber cloth to wipe the Spectacle lenses
8. You can use a soft tooth brush to clean around nose pads and hinges
9. Avoid using scratched lenses
10. Always wear Eye glasses while driving
11. Please file this prescription safely for your future reference
12. Ideally get your eyes examined every year
13. If you are allergic to Metal Frames, use only Hypo-allergenic metal frames (Titanium)
14. It is very common to experience a feeling of disorientation while you adjust to your new lenses
15. Never leave your spectacles on the dash board of a car or near a source of heat, as this may stretch the frame and can cause the lenses to crack or craze due to excessive heat and extreme temperature variation

"The prescribing and dispensing of spectacles are very closely linked and it would be in your best interests to have your spectacles dispensed where you have your eyes examined. It is often more difficult to resolve any problems you may have with your spectacles when prescribing and supply are separated".

Nikki Haley sworn in Governor

WASHINGTON: The daughter of Sikh immigrants from Punjab, Indian-American Namrata "Nikki" Randhawa Haley proudly recollected her Indian heritage while being sworn in as the first woman and non-white governor of South Carolina.

"I stand before you today, the proud daughter of Indian immigrants," said Ms. Haley in her inaugural speech on the State House's south steps on Wednesday.

Several top Republican leaders including Mississippi Governor Haley Barbour, a number of Congressmen and a large number of Indian-Americans from various parts of the country, and India's Ambassador Tejendra Shankar braved frigid weather to be present during the historic occasion.

"Growing in rural, small town South Carolina, my family experienced this state as a place where everyone is accepted."

described his behavior as unacceptable."

said Ms. Haley. "No, not every day was perfect. No, we were not always free from the burdens faced by those who look and sound different," said Ms. Haley who, after Bobby Jindal from Louisiana, is only the second Indian-American Governor.

"But we counted our blessings, and my parents reminded me and my brothers and sister every day how blessed we were to live in this country. We saw the constant example of neighbours helping neighbours," she said after being administered the oath by State Supreme Court Chief Justice Jean Toal.

"For us, happiness existed in not knowing what we didn't have, and in knowing that what we did have was the opportunity to better our lives through hard work and strong values," said Ms. Haley who was dressed in a bright, white overcoat.

Her husband, Michael, and by Turkey and Brazil to help their two children, Rena and Nalin, stood by her side during the swearing-in.

"You see, my mother was offered one of the first female judgeships in her native country, but was unable to serve on the bench because of the challenges of being a woman in India.

"Now she sits here today watching her daughter become Governor of South Carolina, the state she proudly calls her home. When you grow up with a mom like that, the word 'can't' is not in your vocabulary," said Ms. Haley.

"I will always be the proud daughter of immigrants. I will always cherish our family's experience. And I will always strive in my actions and in my words to make South Carolina a place where all of our children, regardless of race or gender, know that unlimited opportunities for happiness and success await them," said Ms. Haley. — PTI

Nikki Haley wins Republican primary

WASHINGTON: Indian-American Nikki Haley has bagged the Republican nomination for South Carolina's gubernatorial elections to be held in November.

The victory, U.S. media said, elevated her to the national stage and almost a certain win later in the year.

If elected in the November elections, Ms. Haley would be the first Indian-American female Governor in the U.S. and also the first ever female Governor of South Carolina.

The 38-year-old overcame a series of allegations of extra-marital affairs, which she had denied, and an ethnic slur targeting her Sikh heritage to win the nomination. Ms. Haley, a married mother of two, spent the weeks before the June 8 primary denying allegations by a blogger and a lobbyist that they'd had physical relationships with her.

Shortly after those accusations, Ms. Haley also had to face being called a "raghead" — a derogatory term for people of West Asian or Indian descent — by a backer of one opponent.

In the run-off to the primary elections on Tuesday, Ms. Haley defeated Congressman Gresham Barrett. The Indian-origin Republican candidate was endorsed by top party leaders including Sarah Palin, the former Alaska Governor, and Mitt Romney, the former Massachusetts Governor.

U.S. media reported that Ms. Haley, a converted Christian who was born Nimrata Randhawa, starts as a favourite against Democrat Vincent Sheheen as South Carolina has strongly favoured the Republican Party.

The state has never voted for a Democratic presidential candidate since Jimmy Carter in 1976.

Ms. Haley, who was trailing behind most of her Republican rivals, started gaining ground and eventually won the Republican nominations soon after she was endorsed by Ms. Palin and Mr. Romney, both of whom campaigned in her favour.

Ms. Haley got 65 per cent of the total votes polled, while Mr. Barrett received 35 per cent. The Washington Post said the victory made Ms. Haley not just the front-runner for the office this fall but a likely national GOP star. — PTI
