South Carolina State Parks

at 12:22:29 on 4/26/2017 UTC · 🌐

Park Rangers are used to visitors losing their keys, and us finding them on a park..... But it's not often that we find a 300 year old key, except maybe at Colonial Dorchester.

Around 300 years ago someone that lived or worked at the town of Dorchester held this key in their hand to unlock their home or business, and today, we hold it again. How cool is that? Find out more about Colonial Dorchester, here: <http://southcarolinaparks.com/colonialdorchester>

Angelica Lakhani Roy, isn't this neat?

at 12:36:10 on 4/26/2017 UTC

Roy Queen It would be hard to lose a key that big but somebody did! 🐱

at 12:37:45 on 4/26/2017 UTC

Mary Guidone We loved Colonial Dorchester! Noah will tell you all about the powder magazine there and how it's made of tabby 😊
