David Davis How far from parking to the cabins? Is the lake accessible by foot from the cabins?
at 15:54:12 on 4/18/2018 UTC

Linda Meetze Lucas At least a few cabins should be offered that are pet friendly. Other state parks have rules for pets. High fines for breaking rules should deter irresponsible pet parents. We travel with our 80 pound Catahoula all the time. Have stayed with her at high end hotels. An extra cleaning fee is usually charged. This needs to be addressed so whole families can enjoy the park. ☺

Nichole Brink-Dingler If you have allergies you don't stay in a "pet friendly" cabin. The park can make more money by charging a pet fee, and have a pet deposit fee for any damage that may occur.

You mean you would actually try and turn away a veteran with a service animal. I think not.

Regardless of others allergies, there should be specific cabins for the disabled.

Jan Jankura So Danny Ramsey you are saying that service dogs apply to this as well and you are ok with that. SMH. In other words it ok to discriminate. How sad. ALL people should be allowed to enjoy visiting this park not just the ones YOU choose.

Casey Branham Um. Just like hotel rooms have designated pet rooms and designated smoking rooms, they could designate a cabin or 2 for pet owners and people who dont care about staying where pets have stayed. There IS a middle compromise.
