Dear Governor Sanford and Ms. Forkner,

After being assured repeatedly for months that our daughter, Emily Porter had a waiver slot under the new South Carolina Community Supports Waiver, we were advised on February 22, 2010 that she in fact has been denied the waiver.

On June 16, 2009, we met with Emily's service coordinator from York County Disabilities and Special Needs to process the paperwork necessary to obtain a slot under the Community Supports Waiver. We were assured that Emily would receive a slot, once the correct paperwork was submitted by York County. In September and October, we followed up with the service coordinator and again were assured that the process was going forward. On January 6, 2010 we were told that Emily had been denied, but that it was ~~an error~~ and that she would receive priority in the appeal process. On January 15, 2010 I met with her service coordinator to sign a "Statement of Understanding" to resign from the Medicaid Managed Care Organization (MCO) and select the Community Supports Waiver. At that time I was told that Emily's file was complete, that she had received the waiver slot and that a budget for services would be prepared by the end of the following week.

We waited another four weeks without any information. Finally, after pushing to get an answer, we were notified via e-mail that in fact Emily had been denied the Community Supports Waiver slot. The reason given was a lack of billable services during 2009.

Emily received job coaching services from York County DSN after graduation in May, 2006 until she lost her job because the restaurant where she was employed closed. The job coach provided by York County DSN made a very tepid attempt to find Emily another job, which was further hampered by the downturn in the economy.

Then, in January, 2009 Emily underwent extensive surgery on her right foot, which involved bunion surgery, placement of a lateral post to straighten her gait, and cutting and stretching her achilles tendon. She spent at least 8 weeks in a wheelchair, with a cast on her foot, and then had to put only limited weight on the foot for weeks after that. She required assistance to walk. By April she was able to walk again without assistance, but on May 1, 2009, she had surgery on her left foot. This surgery was a duplicate of her right foot and included bunion surgery, a lateral post and achilles tendon. Again, she was in a wheelchair. By mid-July, she was able to begin weight-bearing on her left foot. She began physical therapy to help in the recuperative process on September 9, 2009. Soon after that, her bunion surgery failed, which hampered her recovery. She attended physical therapy sessions and followup doctor appointments, which showed that the intrinsic muscles in her feet were extremely weak. Slowly Emily regained strength in her feet and legs, and by December, 2009 she had regained enough stamina to think about resuming her search for supported employment, even though her feet were not fully healed.

Throughout 2009 we maintained contact with her job coach, to assess her recovery progress and determine when services could be resumed. Her service plan continued to reflect the need for job support services, but since she was unable to walk, and then lacked strength and stamina, actively seeking a job had to be postponed.

In December 2009 we agreed with her job coach that Emily was sufficiently recovered to continue seeking a job in spite of economic downturn. We recently resumed the job search, and have developed a good working relationship and set of goals with her York County DSN job coach. It would be a shame to have to discontinue these services now that Emily is finally able to walk and seek supported employment in her local community.

Even though Emily was not receiving "billable" services through York County DSN or the State of South Carolina throughout 2009, she was receiving day activity-type services from a local agency. In fact from July 2008 to February 2010, Emily has received 954 hours of billable services! 610 of those billable hours fell during the calendar year 2009. These services in Emily's community of Fort Mill were not available through York County DSN, nor was funding available to her for such services. She did not yet have a waiver, so the services were paid for privately by her family.

The services that Emily received even while in a wheelchair and recuperating from surgery, included job skills and participating in volunteer work, as well as working on independence, social and life skills. It is a community-based program, perfectly in line with what Community Supports Waiver was designed to promote. They are services that Emily desperately needed in order to remain the up-beat, talented, productive person that she was when she graduated from high school.

The bottom line is that we were repeatedly told and assured that Emily had in fact received a waiver slot, only to be notified by e-mail at the last minute, that she had been denied the slot.

In addition, we were told that it was due to a lack of "billable services" in 2009.

However, that lack was due to medically necessary surgery, and her service plan continued to reflect the need for supported employment. In fact, she has now recovered sufficiently to resume those services. It also did not take into consideration the 610 hours of billable community based services Emily received from a service provider independent of York County DSN and DDSN. Again, those services are desperately needed and would have been reflected in her plan under any waiver she was able to obtain. It is my understanding that the State of South Carolina has received a mandate to increase the number of service providers in the state. Yet, it seems that because Emily received services from a provider independent of York County DSN, and had to pay for those services through her family because she didn't have a waiver, she has therefore been denied the waiver slot.

We are hoping that this situation will be reviewed, and we would sincerely appreciate any reconsideration that can be given to Emily's status with regards to the Community Supports Waiver.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Priest:

Enclosed please find a letter from parents, Mark and Cheryl Porter, regarding accessing the Community Supports waiver on behalf of their daughter, Emily. It details numerous issues. Please ask your staff to conduct the necessary research and contact the appropriate personnel in order to provide a thorough and detailed response to all of the Porters' identified concerns. I would appreciate receiving your formal response to these concerns by April 2, 2010, as I will share this information with Mr. and Mrs. Porter when replying to their letter. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

RE: Emily Porter - Community Supports Waiver

Dear Ms. Forkner:

I am writing in response to your March 29, 2010 correspondence in which you asked that I respond to issues raised in a letter from Mark and Cheryl Porter regarding services for their daughter, Emily. The primary concern in the letter is the denial of enrollment in the Community Supports (CS) Waiver.

The Centers for Medicare/Medicaid Services (CMS) allows states to reserve capacity in their Home and Community Based Waivers for groups of people specified by the state. Reserving capacity allows those specified groups of people to enroll directly into the waiver, bypassing any waiting list. The CSW reserves capacity for two (2) groups of people:

- Those currently receiving Medicaid State Plan Rehabilitation Services and,
- Those currently enrolled in the Mental Retardation/Related Disabilities (MR/RD) Waiver.

Emily Porter was authorized to receive Rehabilitation Services on January 4, 2007. However, as indicated in the letter from her parents, Emily did not receive Rehabilitation service throughout 2009. Therefore, at the time waiver enrollment was requested she was not receiving Medicaid State Plan Rehabilitation Services as specified in the waiver.

Correspondence from the Porters indicates that contact was maintained with Emily's Job Coach throughout 2009 which seems to imply that Rehabilitation Services were received. The provision of Medicaid State Plan Rehabilitation Services requires a minimum of one (1) hour of face-to-face contact between the provider and the participant. Since the noted contact did not likely meet the minimum requirements for service provision, reimbursement for those services was not claimed.

In their correspondence, the Porter's also indicate that Emily received a service similar to Rehabilitation Services that was paid for by her family. Emily's Service Plan indicates that the service she received, paid for by her family, was Adult Day Health Care. Emily is very fortunate to have been able to receive these services during her recuperation. However, the CS Waiver is very clear that capacity is reserved for those currently receiving Medicaid State Plan Rehabilitation Services.

I hope this address the issues sufficiently. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Porter:

This letter follows my recent March 29, 2010 correspondence regarding your daughter, Emily, and your interest in the Community Supports (CS) waiver. As noted previously, my staff contacted the SC Department of Disabilities and Special Needs (SCDDSN) and asked them to research your concerns. We recently received their response. SCDDSN evaluated the information you provided as well as Emily's historical case file. Based on this review and the strict criteria for CS waiver enrollment, SCDDSN determined Emily does not meet the enrollment qualifications for the CS waiver at this time. The SCDDSN response is enclosed for your review.

We hope this information is helpful to you. We understand that the requirements for special Medicaid programs, including home and community-based waivers, are sometimes confusing. For this reason we encourage you to maintain close contact with Emily's service coordinator regarding any questions you have. If you have specific questions regarding the SCDDSN response to your inquiry, you may wish to contact Ms. Janet Priest, at the SCDDSN State Office, 803-898-9620.

Thank you for your efforts to advocate on behalf of your daughter.
