Subject: Attend the Dignity Forum Virtually

Last month, we held an event in DC that brought together researchers, service providers, and advocates to explore how we can ensure economic security for older Americans and their families at a time when the population is aging and few Americans are prepared for a secure retirement.

Virtually attend the Dignity Forum—watch the recordings of the panels and opening comments, view the photos, and download the slides.

Panel One includes important data that you can use to convey the scope and severity of senior poverty to a variety of audiences, in Panel Two you'll hear from professionals who provide critical services to low-income seniors, while Panel Three speakers describe the advocacy efforts they are engaged in. You'll also enjoy inspiring opening remarks by Justice in Aging Executive Director Kevin Prindiville and Representative Jan Schakowsky (D-IL).

You can help us get the word out to even more people by sharing these resources with your networks. Please use #DignityforAll when tweeting.

And, as always, please stay in touch with any ideas about how we can work together in the coming months to preserve the critical programs that America's low-income seniors rely on. We're going to need to speak with a unified voice to policy makers and the public about why these programs matter for all Americans.

We are grateful for the Borchard Foundation Center on Law and Aging's support for this forum.
