Statement from Gov. Nikki Haley on another drop in S.C.'s unemployment rate

Haley: We are moving in a great direction

COLUMBIA, S.C. – For the seventh consecutive month, South Carolina's unemployment rate has declined. The rate fell from 9.3 percent in January to 9.1 percent in February.

Governor Nikki Haley today released the following statement regarding South Carolina's unemployment figures announced by the Department of Employment and Workforce \(DEW\):

“It's a great day in South Carolina! There is more work to be done, but we are moving in a great direction.”
