Jim,

NCES has a national report on projections of education statistics that may be of interest but is not at a state level for the higher education data and does not get to the type information you are seeking. The most recent report is available at <http://nces.ed.gov/programs/projections/projections2021/index.asp>. As to planning long term enrollment planning, the individual colleges would be the best source of information. Let me know if we can assist further.

Thanks,
Julie

Thanks for the information. If you have any websites that I might visit, that will be helpful. Trying to understand how they institutions plan long term.

Jim

Hi Jim,

We don't have any statistics on enrollment projections for the institutions. There is likely national data on projections based on demographic information but any such estimates would be at the state level. Let me know if you'd like us to explore a source.

Thanks,
Julie

Julie,

Does CHE have any projections on future enrollment by institution that it may share with us? Projections based on demographic data going out 5 to 20 years would be the best.

Thanks, Jim
