South Carolina State Parks

at 23:28:00 on 5/28/2019 UTC

Santee State Park is a nesting site for bald eagles. This morning our rangers at the park received a call of a juvenile bald eagle in the roadway. The bird was injured and disoriented and appeared it could have been hit by a car. Our rangers took action and they were able to corral the bird into a carrier. The South Carolina Department of Natural Resources was notified and came and got the bird. We are hoping that the eagle can fully recover after treatment. Thanks to the citizen who called, our rangers and SCDNR for quick action! <https://southcarolinaparks.com/santee>

Russell Richardson It would be cool to have a name the Eagle contest ... I know you would have to block some suggestions because they would be obnoxious but a lot of us would love to see the creativity of good people sharing
