

Contract for Change Rollout – Senate Rules
11 am – Charleston County Courthouse
2:30 pm – Crossings Park baseball field, Hilton Head

Charleston County Courthouse:

Logistics:

- MS will speak from a podium outside of the Courthouse, which is also the location of the first Statehouse. A horse and buggy will be off to the side for MS to make reference to
- MS will speak first, Sen. McConnell will speak second. Other legislators have been invited (Carl responsible for list)

Audience:

- Media only

Special Note:

- It's appropriate that we talk about modernizing Senate rules on this site – this was the site of state government during the “horse and buggy age.”
- Charleston was the original state capital, and the Capitol building stood on this site until it burned during the Constitutional Ratification Convention of 1788, leaving only the foundation, walls and doorways.
- Anxious to retain their position in the new state government, Charlestonians quickly began reconstruction of the building in a Neoclassical style. Judge William Drayton, an amateur architect, supervised the construction, while James Hoban, architect of the White House may have assisted in its design.
- By the time of its completion in 1792, Columbia was firmly established as the capital city, and the building became a center for legal activity, housing circuit, state and federal courts as well as the sheriff's office

Crossings Park baseball field:

Logistics:

- MS will speak from home plate on one of the baseball fields. There will be a mike stand, but no podium
- Carl Blackstone responsible for list of invited legislators to stand with MS

Audience:

- Media only

Special Note:

- The idea behind the baseball field is to talk about Senate Rules in the context of “playing by the rules.”
- Sports analogy: the way the Senate works now is like playing baseball with a team of linebackers at each base bag – an obstruction that would make scoring a run incredibly difficult
