at 18:02:08 on 9/13/2017 UTC · 🌐

Hunting Island State Park was greatly affected by Hurricane Irma earlier this week. Most of the damage was caused by flooding from the storm surge and heavy rains. Park Director Gaines and our state park team have assessed the damage and provided the photos below. Roads are impassable throughout the park. Parking areas are flooded. The campground electrical system and utilities were infiltrated by saltwater, requiring replacement. In order for us to make repairs, the park will be closed for the remainder of the 2017 calendar year. The Nature Center will reopen this Friday, September 15, and serve as an information hub for the park. If you have a reservation at Hunting Island between now and the end of 2017, you will be contacted and a full refund will be issued. Thank you for your patience and understanding during this time. Updates for all parks can be found at: <http://bit.ly/2e6gXJY>

Michele Emmons I know, Kasey. Do't know if it will ever recover as a campground.

Brad Osborn That's a rude statement to make. There are grants and money from other state parks to help out. The state parks you mention are atleast 2 hours away and not as close as hunting island is to us. I just spent 70 bucks for a pass to use it one time. They should atleast let us use it in 2018.

Erin Fain Parker We are from Michigan and feel so sad for your state parks in NC. I pray Hunting Island can be restored. My first trip was with my in laws and twin 3year olds. I will never forget the moment we were pulling in. The windows down, the smell of the ocean, and then was blown away by its breath taking beauty. We hadn't even gotten out of our vehicle yet, and I knew it was going to be a trip of a lifetime. All I said was "this is paradise". We were fortunate to have two more great visits, and have been trying to return for the last 2 years but Mother Nature said No. I agree with the posts about supporting all state parks. Please visit Michigan too. We all play apart in keeping them going.

at 2:37:05 on 9/14/2017 UTC

Winnifrid Smith O'Connor Left alone barrier islands will shrink and grow over time, shorelines always changing. Humans try to fight the change, wanting them to stay the same. Nature has other ideas.

Morgan Kelly Beverly Kelly- were y'all planning any trips here?

at 2:57:02 on 9/14/2017 UTC

Ronnie Brogdon They change over time until someone in power does something to keep a place on the ocean affordable an educational. I'd rather fix it where it could be enjoyed instead of paying 12 thousand a week for a oceanfront rental home to get the experience . This is not yo average barrier island ,a million tourist a year visit . It should be rebuilt to remain . God gave us the technology to do this,I'm sure he will not mind. Hoping we can pull together to see they it remains a state park .

at 2:59:34 on 9/14/2017 UTC

at 3:24:44 on 9/14/2017 UTC

Jon Stegmeir I'm assuming she means Myrtle Beach, which obviously is incorrect... she's thinking of Huntington Beach state park.
Brad Osborn there are no "grants" or other money from State parks. When hunting island was fully operational, it's revenue actually went to OTHER state parks, because they had so many visitors every year. Not having hunting island makes the other state parks suffer as well because now all that money isn't being generated.

Marvin Donna Ennis Just stayed 8-20-17 for a week it was so nice watched the eclipse on the beach. But there were alot of standing water electrical problems. But that was just kinks that could have been fixed if the storm had not hit....

Dayna Davis Miles I'm not being negative but realistic and it's my opinion. I certainly don't want to see the park close. But we have camped there for over 10 years and have watch the island very quickly erode. Sights we camped in 10 years ago were washed away long before Matthew. The state of SC may reach a point where they no longer want to continue funneling money into the park. We have talked with campers over the years who have felt the same as me. It's an unstable barrier island and Mother Nature is taking her toll.

Scott Conner Big Pine Key is opened in 1959 it is a privately owned campground that is now being operated by a third generation family member.
It borders the key deer sanctuary.
It is located on a spit of Coral between the gulf and Atlantic on the Atlantic side you watch the sunrise over the Atlantic in the morning while a few hundred yards the other direction was it set over the Gulf of Mexico located 3 miles for the most beautiful coral reef in the US fishing is awesome snorkeling unparalleled what makes this place special in the family that operates it they are without a doubt the most professional kind-hearted loving group family and friends you could ever hope to meet check them out online Big Pine Key fishing lodge

Silja Meier Burns Do not agree. I love that place too but a barrier island has a purpose to protect the mainland. I am a native from Hilton head. Our tax money goes to help beach erosion to watch it all wash away in one hurricane. Bonus that it HI has so many visitors but building a sea wall only creates more erosion. Lifting electrical lines and transformers etc is def a better idea. Nature is something to be respected not controlled.

Carolyn Elizabeth Moore This poor beach area.

at 14:00:26 on 9/14/2017 UTC

Ronnie Brogdon HHI is a barrier island . Campers aren't allowed at HHI beachfront . You must pay 8 to 12 thousand a week to enjoy beachfront on HHI. Hunting island has had far less beach re nourishment than HHI . I love HHI ,always have but left alone you would have no beachfront on seapines ,north forest beach or south forest beach. All these areas had 10s of millions of dollars spent on what is primarily private homes . You have no argument . Just because it's a park and more natural doesn't mean it should stay that way or be neglected . People pick an choose how " natural" they want to be . $$$ rules in this world . I want to save the park ,I fear it will be closed .

Michael Shelly-Moody I've not had high hopes since the Fall BEFORE Matthew. Since then more and more of the water table is above ground more and more of the time :- ( As much as I love it I don't think it is sustainable as anything close to what it was. There are far too many other critical priorities, especially when whatever is invested there may disappear with the next wet/rough year. I'll take what nature offers there and use my park pass elsewhere. I hope others will do the same.

Pam Hyatt Twice in less than 3 years this wonderful park has been seriously damaged by the powers of nature. As others have said, it may well be time to acknowledge the reality that a barrier island serves man best as a protection to the mainland, not as an actively maintained recreation area. Truth is, this will continue to happen. Allow the park to become a wonderfully inviting passive area. Fix and maintain the light House and the nature center. Provide walking trails and fishing areas. Let nature take back the man- made camping areas. The continued expense of repair and maintenance to a use that seemingly is not meant to be there seems a serious misuse of funds. I have greatly enjoyed a number of wonderful camping experiences here over the years, but it seems to me now that it is time to face the realities. It's simply neither cost effective nor logical to continue to use this area for this purpose. Just my thoughts.

Susan Utsey Jarrett It's all about politics and what island can bring in the largest amount of money (thus HHI is thriving because of the Tanger Outlets plus 100's of stores and restaurants). I want Hunting Island to be re-nourished and not given back to Mother Nature. What keeps Fripp Island from washing away (that no one has access to other than homeowners)? I'm not bashing Fripp - I was just wondering about these barrier islands and what keeps them sustained.

at 5:27:15 on 9/17/2017 UTC

Eddie Bellamy Fripp is armored with huge granite rip-rap seawalls. In many places there is no beach at high tide.

at 10:20:48 on 9/17/2017 UTC

Treva Hershberger Heartbreaking to see all this damage. This is one of our favorite camping places. We have reservations for 2018 and sincerely hope there will be no storms interfering with that. We got canceled last year because of Mr Matthew invading the place. I feel so bad for those who had plans to go this year and are having to be canceled out because of Ms Irma's invasion.

at 0:52:45 on 9/18/2017 UTC

Kevin O'Brien The Hunting Island Beach.

at 0:53:29 on 9/18/2017 UTC

Eddie Bellamy To my knowledge, that beach hasn't been renourished. The dredging for HHI is done well south of Hunting Island. If any human actions have effected that beach, it is installation of jetties at Charleston harbor. Supposedly the sand migrates south.

at 0:58:53 on 9/18/2017 UTC

Kevin O'Brien They have done it 8 times since 1969 to Hunting Island.

at 1:02:21 on 9/18/2017 UTC

Kevin O'Brien The last time it was renourished was in 2007.
at 1:02:54 on 9/18/2017 UTC

Billie Lindsay I have observed a constantly changing beach here on Lido Key in Sarasota. I go there at least once a week and find that that beach area is larger or smaller every single time. Such is the nature of barrier islands.

Kay Smith Does anyone know if the trail by the pier is open?
at 20:56:34 on 9/19/2017 UTC

Trish Reynolds Yes. Right outside Beaufort

Christopher Corbett Robin, it is... very sad. Houses at Harbor Island cannot be rebuilt, now beach. Insurance $ will not pay

Christopher Corbett OMGoodness, if you saw after Matthew, it was a very different scene, went down Friday- it's very sad
at 11:27:52 on 9/24/2017 UTC

Christopher Corbett You would not have recognized the park from Matthew. The beach actually almost now come up to the park stored. It was very Sad after Matthew, just opened 1st weekend in August and 1 month later ... Irma

Pam Hyatt Would like to see the beach area taken care of, as well as the lighthouse, so so many can enjoy them both. The campground has only so many sites, and therefore limited access to all. Cut the expense, close the campground due to the continued negative impact of nature, and save the beach! That was my original suggestion.

Debby Gantt Werth With my 875th comment... it would be a wonderful thing for all who this matters to to pitch in and volunteer help that's what it needs the people who have shared the memories and love the place to be there and volunteer any kind of help... My memories are from 38 years ago, wonderful place wonderful friends and a wonderful time in my life

Melody Nickerson Assaro Connie this was from September 2017....hopefully they won't get hammered again.
at 20:34:11 on 9/13/2018 UTC

Connie Kenny Melody, yes, but it always applies!
at 21:42:37 on 9/13/2018 UTC

Melody Nickerson Assaro Connie Kenny yes your right but for those who have reservations for the campground even though it's been evacuated might think their reservations have been cancelled if it doesn't register it was last year. Hopefully this won't happen again. I saw this same post in a group I belong to and the poor lady freaked out until it was brought to her attention that this was last year. The person who posted it to the group has since deleted it.
