DAILY WASHINGTON NEWS

Recounts or no, US elections are still vulnerable to hacking

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Jill Stein's bid to recount votes in Pennsylvania was in trouble even before a federal ju down Dec. 12. That's because the Green Party candidate's effort stood almost no chance of detecting potential for the vote — there was basically nothing to recount. Pennsylvania is one of 11 states where the majority of voters use machines that store votes electronically, without printed ballots or other paper-based backups that could be used for the balloting.

NEW YORK (AP) — If President-elect Donald Trump wanted to show he planned to obliterate President Barack Obama's approach to Israel, he may have found his man to deliver that message in David Friedman, his pick for U.S. ambassador to Israel.

Michelle Obama: A first lady who charted her own course

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Michelle Obama considered the daunting prospect of becoming first lady, she avoided looking at books by her predecessors for guidance. Instead, she turned inward.
