Here are some reasons why Americans are concerned about accepting refugees from Syria:

Poll: 13% Of Syrian Refugees Support muslim ISIS, 23% — or almost 1 in 4 — could be susceptible to muslim ISIS recruitment. Immigration: A first-of-its-kind survey of the hordes of muslim Syrian refugees entering Europe found 13% support the muslim Islamic State. The poll should raise alarms about the risks posed by the resettlement of 10,000 muslim refugees in the U.S. The poll of 900 Syrian refugees by the Arab Center for Research and Policy Studies also found that another 10% of the displaced Syrians have a lukewarm, but not entirely negative, view of the muslim terror group. That means 23% — or almost 1 in 4 — could be susceptible to muslim ISIS recruitment. It also means as many 2,500 of the 10,000 muslim Syrian refugees that the Obama administration is resettling inside American cities are potential muslim terrorist threats.

The Homeland Security Committee for the United States House of Representatives issued a report on February 12, 2015 titled: FBI Warns of Intelligence Gap on Foreign Fighters in Syria, Iraq. This report states in part: “We don't have it under control,” said Mr. Michael Steinback, Assistant Director for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. “Absolutely, we're doing the best we can. If I were to say that we had it under control, then I would say I know of every single muslim individual traveling. I don't. And I don't know every person there and I don't know everyone coming back. So it's not even close to being under control.”

Muslim ISIS terrorists have tried to exploit the Syrian refugee program to get into the United States, the House Homeland Security Committee chairman claimed Monday. The Washington Post reported, December 8, 2015.

CIA Director John Brennan said during the February 14, 2016 episode of CBS 60 Minutes that “ISIS has access to chemical weapons.”

It is very troubling that Lutheran Services Carolina and Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service are not making it a priority to keep the people of America safe by not accepting muslim Syrian refugees.
