Archaeologists from South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology have been hard at work surveying Rose Hill Plantation State Historic Site. You can learn more about this project by joining Stacey Young, Director of SCIAA's Applied Research Division, during her exciting "Archaeology of Plantation Lifeways" program at Rose Hill at 11:00 am this Saturday. After a discussion, she will take you on a walk around the grounds to view past archaeological excavation sites. This program is FREE and open to the public.
