Dear Readers,

India is poised for the latest chapter in its incredible globalisation story. When Narendra Modi arrives in the US this week, he will embark upon more than just his longest foreign visit since taking over as India's Prime Minister. The visit comes packed with expectations and the chance for India to chart a new course in its engagement with the world's superpower.

The 21st century has seen the dawn of a confident India edging towards a dominant position on the global stage and relations with the US have mirrored this growing self-confidence.

The Modi-Obama summit will undoubtedly go down in history; but what will set it apart from past summits will be the fact that this time it will be two equals meeting on a level footing.

India Inc – as your news and views hub – has taken a new initiative to bring you all aspects of this historic visit in one place with the #ModiInAmerica microsite. It will be your one-stop spot on the web for news, views, analyses as well articles curated on the subject from a wide range of sources.

We have done the hard work of collating all the relevant data, so you can now simply click away.
