

Account: South Carolina State Parks

Content type: Facebook Page - Videos

Record ID: 20090810South-Carolina-State-ParksVideos52748_1037417795153

South Carolina State Parks

at 15:48:01 on 8/10/2009 UTC

We've arrived at Lee State Natural Area where we were greeted by one of the park inhabitants -- a cornsnake -- and park interpreter Laura Kirk. Check out the video.

Lee State Natural Area

Scott Krause If you need more videos I'm here to help!

at 16:34:52 on 8/10/2009 UTC

Randall Terry Burns Take a trip to the Lee State Natural Area just to see Park Ranger Laura Kirk and Maize, the corn snake. Maize is one friendly snake!

at 16:34:57 on 8/10/2009 UTC

Patricia Voelker Was there a couple of weeks ago and saw no ranger, no corn snake...did have decent birds tho.

at 20:54:25 on 8/10/2009 UTC

David Warren I hate to be negative, but Lee State Natural Area is my least favorite SC state park, we were very disappointed in the campground, not very scenic or pretty at all. Also being close to the Equestrian campground, the flies and other insects were swarming around our vehicle like the plague. We didnt even get out of the car. I think any new state park money should go to Lee to spruce the place up. Gravel packed sites and cutting out the old rotten trees would go a long way.

at 22:34:49 on 8/10/2009 UTC

Perry Rainey David, I don't think there is any "new state park money". Funds have been cut to the bone. They do the best they can with the $ they have. The only way they can get additional funds is to raise fees and that is a "Catch 22".

at 1:46:29 on 8/11/2009 UTC

Donald Edward Goldman Lee is a great park close to Florence, Sumter or Camden for a spring or fall 4 mile fairly easy hike. My wife and I like to hike loop road on Sunday afternoons when the road is not flooded. We always see deer and other wildlife on the hike. Always stop and take a break by the artesian wells along the way.

at 2:17:24 on 8/11/2009 UTC