E-Filing tip of the week: E-Filing motions

Did you know that you no longer have to submit a Motion and Order Information Form and Coversheet when you e-file a motion? You can simply submit the motion and indicate whether you are requesting a hearing in the e-filing system. Only use the Motion and Order Information Form and Coversheet if you wish to e-file a proposed order without an accompanying motion.

ADVANCE SHEET UPDATE

In this real property case, the S.C. Court of Appeals reversed the master's ruling, finding that the master erred in determining Gooldy was entitled to the presumption of an easement based on the deed's reference to "the Loflin plat" and that the master also erred in determining the evidence surrounding the initial conveyance of the .68 acre tract demonstrated the parties' intent to create an easement. Based on those conclusions, the court found that the master also erred in awarding damages arising from Storage Center's conduct.

Gooldy v. The Storage Center, Op. No. 5366 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 27) is available online.

In this declaratory judgment action, the Court held that the circuit court properly determined that Pee Dee's commercial general liability insurance policy provided coverage in addition to that disbursed under the auto policy. Accordingly, the ruling of the circuit court granting of summary judgment in favor of Respondents Elouise and Melvin Benjamin was affirmed.

Auto-Owners Insurance v. Benjamin, Op. No. 5367 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 36) is available online.

In this appeal from a condemnation action, Powell argued the circuit court erred in granting the South Carolina Department of Transportation's (SCDOT) motion for partial summary judgment. The court of appeals found that Hardin v. South Carolina Department of Transportation is not applicable to the present case, as it is an inverse condemnation case which does not involve the physical appropriation of private property. Here, the question was whether Powell was entitled to compensation for access damages to his remaining property where there was physical appropriation of land by SCDOT. The court affirmed, holding that the circuit court did not err in finding that any diminution in value of Powell's property as a result of the change in road access was not compensable.

SCDOT v. Powell, Op. No. 5368 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 50) is available online.

The court affirmed the Workers' Compensation Commission's order, finding that substantial evidence supported the Appellate Panel's decision that Brian Wofford was not acting within the course and scope of his employment at the time of his death under an exception to the "going and coming rule." The court found that the "duty or task exception" did not apply, nor did Wofford perform a special errand.

Wofford v. City of Spartanburg, Op. No. 5369 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 60) is available online.

The court reversed the decision of the Appellate Panel of the South Carolina Workers' Compensation Commission. The court found that appellant Rhame was not aware that his back injury was compensable until May 2009, and therefore, his Form 50, filed in September 2009, was timely pursuant to section 42-15-40. Accordingly, the court reinstated the single commissioner's award of benefits.

Rhame v. Charleston County School District, Op. No. 5370 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 68) is available online.

In this civil matter, the court affirmed, finding that the circuit court properly granted respondents' motion for summary judgment because Fisher lacked standing to bring a survival action against them as Shaw-Baker's real representative. The court noted that the instant case did not present the occasion for a determination as to whether a real representative continues to have standing to pursue a survival action based on trespass or injury to a decedent's real property after the enactment of the South Carolina Probate Code. Because the finding that Fisher lacked standing was dispositive, the court declined to address the remaining issues on appeal.

Fisher v. Huckabee, Op. No. 5371 (S.C. Ct. App. filed December 9, 2015) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 48 at 75) is available online.
