I think that article I just sent is probably the best most comprehensive source, it was cited by several of the other articles I looked at. As for SC Economics I haven't found any studies of SC regulations and economic impact so I think the best thing would be to make the connection like this article from the SC Policy Council: <http://www.scpolicycouncil.org/research/taxes/sunset-law>. They say something along the lines of if regulations in sc have had even a fraction of the impact that federal regulations have had. . .
