WELCOME TO SMART CITIES NOW

Updates on smart city progress around the globe

NEWS & TRENDS

Kansas City's smart start to a smart city: To transform urban services and improve livability and economic vitality, Kansas City is teaming with Cisco, Sprint, Black & Veatch and others to deploy a smart city framework with room to grow. Learn how KC's plans encapsulate three important smart city trends. MORE >>

Providing post-disaster essentials: The ability to communicate ranks right up there with food and shelter after a disaster. Verizon has invested in a wide range of emergency services that help connect communities after hurricanes, tornadoes and wildfires. See how their efforts help victims, but also those coming to their aid. MORE >>

Bright minds take on big challenges: From improving healthcare and agricultural yields to meeting energy and water needs as urban populations soar, Intel is on a mission to bring bright minds together to find solutions. Latest examples: a big data analytics lab near Paris and an IoT Ignition Lab in Ireland. Find out how cities will benefit. MORE >>

MARKETS & RESEARCH

Strategic directions in smart water: An important new report from Black & Veatch shows how water utilities are taking steps to prepare themselves for both short-term system shocks and long-term sustainability. It examines resiliency from three perspectives: strategic, financial and operational. Click for a link to the free report and a video overview. MORE >>

Dissecting California's smart cities: What do the smartest cities have in common? What's even more important than money in advancing smart cities? With support from Civic Resource Group, college students in California studied cities to find out. The results may surprise -- and inspire -- other cities. MORE >>

PRODUCTS & SERVICES

Making sense of all that meter data: You hear a lot of talk about Big Data. But what's really needed is Big Insights. That's what Neptune Technology Group has accomplished for the data streaming in from smart meters with release of the Neptune Connector for Cityworks. Learn how the system benefits utilities and local governments. MORE >>
