TO: Members of the South Carolina General Assembly

FROM: John L. Finan, Agency Administrator
SC Department of Employment and Workforce

SUBJECT: Local Workforce Areas and DEW announce service model

The state's unemployment rate is the lowest it has been in four years at 8.6 percent. South Carolinians are finding jobs, and the state's overall economy is improving. In 2012, businesses added approximately 26,500 jobs.

This welcome news also means fewer people are claiming Unemployment Insurance (UI) benefits, which is great for the Palmetto State. However, as we have been discussing with you and our partners over the past month, these declines in unemployment and corresponding dips in claims and reemployment workloads translate into reduced operational funding available to DEW from the U.S. Department of Labor. At the same time, federal funding to our state's local workforce investment areas has also declined.

Bearing all these factors in mind, it has become more important than ever to work with our local partners in designing a new workforce delivery system that is sustainable for the long term as the state continues down the path of economic recovery.

Consequently, the state's 12 local workforce areas have worked with DEW to develop new service delivery models that will meet each local area's particular needs for reemployment and unemployment insurance services. This reorganization will allow DEW to maintain a high level of quality service for South Carolina's unemployed while operating within the new fiscal constraints. The gains in employment our state has made are encouraging but serving the needs of those seeking assistance and new employment still remains our number one priority.

The new service models involve restructuring to gain efficiencies and reductions in the workforce to balance staff levels with the decreased workloads.

The local workforce investment areas designed their own service delivery plans to best meet the needs of its customers after collaboration with your local councils of governments (COGs) and local workforce investment boards (WIBS). These changes will enable customers to take advantage of services more quickly, efficiently and at times most convenient to them through regional SC Works centers, around-the-clock self-service offerings and local connection points.

We plan to announce today, and local areas will be making their own announcements, that DEW and the local areas have finalized their new service model plans.

Between now and July, DEW anticipates reducing approximately 100 positions. In December, the federal Emergency Unemployment Compensation (EUC) program is set to expire. Unless EUC is reauthorized by Congress, approximately 50 positions will be reduced due to that workload ending.

Local areas will be making their own personnel decisions based on their funding.

Attached are the summary pages of the service models for each of the 12 workforce areas. This has been approved by the pertinent local officials. Should you have any questions, feel free to call me.
