Agencies Defy the Law

State law places certain requirements on agencies when they ask the legislature for more money. The agencies just don't bother. read more>>

Your First Amendment Rights

How secure are South Carolinians' First Amendment rights? Not as secure as you think. read more>>

Your Lawmakers Are about to Choose Your Judges

The General Assembly, as you may know, doesn't confirm judges. It simply chooses them. The governor has no role in the process. That's why, over the years, a lot of family members of lawmakers have become judges. As Phillip Cease pointed out on The Nerve on Friday, it looks like this year will be no different. ## AmazonSmile

Did you know Amazon.com will donate 0.5 percent of your purchase to the nonprofit organization of your choice? We'd like to be that organization. Check out AmazonSmile for more.

Campaigns Are Over, But Spending Isn't

The 2016 election finally came and went. But for state lawmakers, the spending can go on. In fact, they can use their campaign cash to buy vacations, clothes, and all sorts of other things. read more>>
