Governor Nikki Haley today released a report from information security company Mandiant regarding the information security breach at the South Carolina Department of Revenue (S.C. DOR) during an afternoon news conference at the Statehouse in Columbia. Mandiant's report is attached, and video of the governor's news conference is available here: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7OV6TZHqg&>

The governor also encouraged the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to require all states to have stronger security measures in place for handling tax information. A copy of the governor's letter to the IRS is attached.

Finally, the governor today accepted S.C. DOR Director Jim Etter's resignation effective December 31 and announced Bill Blume, who currently serves as Executive Director of the S.C. Public Employee Benefit Authority, as the next Director of S.C. DOR. Information about Blume is available here: <http://peba.sc.gov/meetbill/default.htm>
