Good morning Danny,

I hope you had an enjoyable weekend and no worries at all! It was temporarily promoted and didn't mind a bit. It was overwhelmingly hot that day.

I'll work with folks here to determine the best subject matter expert on this issue and be back in touch just as soon as I can track that down.

Best,

Alannah

Lt. Staver, thanks so much for your help on Thursday. We really appreciate the opportunity to visit Shaw and talk with so many individuals who are doing the hard work of keeping us safe.

Thank you too for this information. Your recall of our request on opioids is correct. Lt Governor Bryant is gathering information from a wide spectrum of medical providers, and our military certainly has a unique perspective and role in health care for millions of Americans. We'd appreciate the chance to learn more about how you at Shaw handle the issue of acute or chronic pain and how the issue of opioids affects your decision making--and, of course, what suggestions you have or solutions you've seen for the growing problem.

Please contact me at any time to arrange for further discussion, and thank you again.

Danny

P. S. - I apologize also, for calling you captain. I really do know better, but I suppose the heat got the better of me.

Good afternoon Mr. Varat,

Thank you so much for visiting with us at Shaw AFB yesterday. We truly enjoyed the opportunity to teach the group about the 20th Fighter Wing and the Airmen were thrilled to have the opportunity to hear from Lt. Governor Bryant and ask him questions.

Following up on a few requests from yesterday.

Please see the link below highlighting Shaw being the first military installation in South Carolina to begin a 4-year-old kindergarten program.

Additionally, I wanted to confirm that Lt. Governor Bryant would like to speak to someone here at Shaw concerning the opioid epidemic and the manner in which the military handles prescribing medications and treatment for patients who have pain/injuries that require an opioid prescription.

I want to make sure I'm fully capturing Lt. Governor Bryant's request before I work to find the right person for him to speak with here on base. If I misunderstood our discussion yesterday please let me know. If there's additional information that I haven't captured above let me know that too.

Again thanks so much for taking the time to come to Shaw!

Best,

Alannah

Very Respectfully,
