How to Watch for Wandering • November 12, 2015 • Issue #864

EDITOR'S PEN

Gary Barg, Editor-in-Chief

Notes from the Road: Veterans Day Week Edition

This fall has been a terrific whirlwind of caregiver faces and places. From Okeechobee to Fort Lauderdale to Marietta to Americus to Birmingham to New Haven and presently winging my way to beautiful downtown Charleston, West Virginia. I have been blessed to be able to spend time with and learn from so many family caregivers. ...more

FEATURED ARTICLE

On The Move

By Jennifer Bradley, Staff Writer

For a caregiver, one of the most anxiety-causing side effects of dementia is wandering. With this diagnosis, caregivers come to expect severe memory loss and confusion as to time and place, but usually they are not prepared for the constant “watch” they must have on their loved one.. ...more

Shopping for the Right In-Home Help

By Eileen Beal, MA

When Mom and Dad are struggling to keep up with the chores, activities or medications that help them maintain their independence and health, the solution to their situation (and your concerns) could be as simple as bringing in someone to provide in-home care for a couple of hours a day. Diabetic Foot Care Tips

By Dr. Tamara D. Fishman

1. Never soak your feet.
 2. Never apply heat of any kind to your feet.
 3. Never cut your own toenails, refer to a podiatrist or medical doctor.
 4. Never go barefoot.
 5. Never assume that the circulation or sensation in your feet is normal. ...more

CAREVERSES

A Sea Change in Care

By Barbara Greer

Let us hold hands as we let go
As we let go, as we let go
Of whom you once were
Of whom I once was
They are no longer here

Let us push our skiff of memories
Across the water to a safer shore
We will find it later
Where the Light shines
Where songs drift on the air

Let us step into a seaworthy craft
To ply through storms of care
Ride the peaks and troughs
Endure the rains of doubt
Set anchor in the harbor of Hope

Let us be there
And write a new song
For what has been lost
And what gained therefrom
I can do the words, you can hum a tune
