Nimrata,

I'm pleased to share two exciting announcements: All College for America degrees are now eligible for federal financial aid, and we will offer two new accredited degree programs, available for student enrollment January 1, 2016:

- Bachelor of Arts in Management

Our competency-based degrees are specifically built for working adults. They are developed based on labor market needs and in conjunction with industry experts and university faculty nationwide.

We are excited about the opportunity to serve many more working learners with these new offerings and about the expanded availability of federal financial aid for eligible students.

If you would like to engage and develop your workforce with these degree programs (only $2,500 tuition per year), please let me know what your questions are and when you are available to discuss your workforce strategy.

All the best,
Julian
