

From: BuzzFeed <noreply@buzzfeed.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 10/16/2015 12:03:09 PM
Subject: This Week In Cats: There's A Rumbling
Attachments: 1\_warning.htm

---

This week's cat of the week has a magnificent belly and he isn't afraid to show it off. Scruffles is the real MVP of cuteness — he even snuggles up to baby chicks during his down time. Keep doin' you, Scruffles.

While the cat of the week was hamming it up, a rumbling could be heard in Cat Country. Tiny kittens banded together to create tiny committees, while other cats made a move to sway the opinion of non-cat lovers — and it worked. Let's go over the highlights, shall we?

- 1) A couple of orphan kittens were adopted by KoKo the gorilla, and it was so adorable — you might actually cry.
- 2) Margo, a special needs dwarf kitten, overcame the odds and started her search for a forever home.
- 3) These cats proved that not all kitties are clever, because they really, really regretted their decisions.
- 4) A cat bed that will solve all your problems was finally invented — and it even has a built in scratching post.
- 5) And finally, these cats just don't care at all if anyone likes them. Seriously, they could not care less.

In other corners of Cat Country, kittens continued to bridge the interspecies gap. One orphaned kitten was adopted and raised by her six ferret brothers, while another teeny tiny kitty befriended a giant fluffy dog — and it was almost too adorable.

While kittens were stressing the importance of making new friends, another group of cats was spending their time majorly weirding everyone out. No really, what is going on here?

Another group of felines took it one step further when they decided to plan a murder. Watch out, folks, these cats are not to be messed with.

Have you been wondering if you should actually get another cat? This simple quiz will help you decide.

Finally, Queen Pudge reminded us that sometimes it's important to cuddle with yourself. Thanks, Pudge.

What a week in Cat Country! Stay tuned to see what's in store next week.

And those were the links! This week in advice, Ask A Dumb Cat answers your questions about drama. You may ask your very own questions of A Dumb Cat at heyanimals@buzzfeed.com.

Dearest Dumb Cat,

There's a lot of drama at work. What should I do to quell it while establishing my dominance?

Sincerely,

Frustrated

Dear Frustrated,

Drama is annoying to deal with, so listen closely if you'd like your work life to be drama-free. I've got the perfect solution to your problem, but you'll have to follow my directions exactly.

First, as soon as you feel like people are starting to get petty, you'll need to open your mouth and promptly hiss. This will alert them that you are not pleased — and that you're not someone who should be messed with.

If the drama persists, you'll have to get a little more crafty with your tactics. This will involve staying late at work and hiding under a chair until everyone leaves. Once they do, take your butt and rub it all over your co-workers' desks. Once they smell your butt all over the place — they'll know you're the one in charge.

Yours,

A Dumb Cat

---

**Have a friend who'd love This Week In Cats? Tell them they can sign up right here!****

This BuzzFeed email was sent to chaneyadams@gov.sc.gov | Unsubscribe

Did a friend forward you this email? Sign up to get BuzzFeed in your inbox

BuzzFeed, Inc. 200 Fifth Ave, 8th Floor, New York, NY 10010