Hero

in Waffle House Shooting Quickly Raises $100K Helping Victims

The hero who disarmed a shooter who killed four people at a Tennessee Waffle House early Sunday has raised nearly $100,000 — and counting — for the victims' families since the tragedy.

The 29-year-old suspect, Travis Reinking, was arrested Monday after a daylong manhunt. He was originally jailed on $2 million bond; that was revoked today.

Reinking is accused of pulling up to a Waffle House in his pickup truck at 3:19 a.m. and sitting inside for three to four minutes before climbing out and fatally shooting Taurean C. Sanderlin, 29, of Goodlettsville, an employee of the restaurant, and patron Joe R. Perez, 20, of Nashville; both were standing outside. Wearing only a jacket, he also shot up the front window of the location.

Inside, the gunman fatally shot DeEbony Groves, 21, of Gallatin, and Akilah Dasilva, 23, of Antioch. Two others were wounded: Shanita Waggoner, 21, of Nashville, and Sharita Henderson, 24, of Antioch...
