Prediction: Largest Economic Opportunity of the 21st Century

It's only about the size of a small coffee pot... But one expert calls it the "largest economic opportunity of the 21st century." It's already being used to partially power Google, Wal-Mart, FedEx and Bank of America. And guess what? The company that makes it could become one of the most valuable in the world. And hardly anybody knows about it. But here's the best part - you can own a piece right now for only about 21 cents. The House Panel will further investigate the Benghazi attacks this week.

On September 17, three security experts will highlight the best practices in compound security.

Once the security experts school the House on proper safety protocol, it will become clear that Obama dropped the ball once again.

But this is only part of the story unfolding.

You see, months of meticulous research have exposed Obama's insidious involvement in the Benghazi attacks. And all the details will come to light this week...
