Governor Haley,

I want to thank you for the leadership you have shown to our state in the middle of the flooding. In a time of great need, we all looked to our leaders for guidance and were not disappointed. South Carolina just showed everyone around the United States how to handle a major disaster with grace, kindness, and solidarity.

I haven't been here for too long, but I'm very proud to call this state my home. There's a quote from author John Maxwell that "everything rises and falls on leadership." I think that it is safe to say that South Carolina has risen this week.

I will be praying for you and your work.

Kelsey
