

From: The Washington Post <newsletters@email.washingtonpost.com>
To: Mayer, DougDougMayer@gov.sc.gov
Date: 12/31/2014 6:33:43 PM
Subject: Your Washington Post newsletters and online profile

---

Dear Reader,

We are making some changes to newsletters and your online profile. Please take this opportunity to update your newsletter selections and your online profile. This is an optional step, we'll continue to personalize content in your inbox or on the Web based on information we now have.

---

New year, new newsletters

We've made some changes to our newsletters, from the wide variety of newsletters (more than 50 options), to the way they look in your inbox and the back-end technology<sup>1</sup>. We'll continue to improve them in the new year.

Click here to opt-in/out of newsletters

<sup>1</sup>Please note that your newsletters and other communication will come from a new e-mail address, email@e.washingtonpost.com. Please add this to your contacts to continue to receive newsletters and other e-mail from The Washington Post.

Newsletters do not require a paying subscription to The Washington Post.

---

Tenleytown, Tennessee or Timbuktu?

When you visit us on the Web, you should see the news most relevant to you. Your online profile helps us personalize your online experience.

Click to update your profile

Have a happy 2015,

Your friends at The Washington Post

This is a one-time message sent to dougmayer@gov.sc.gov based on your Washington Post online profile or activity.
Help & contact info	Privacy policy

View on the Web

©2014 The Washington Post
1150 15th St NW, Washington, DC 20071