

From: Daniel Natal <dinnatal@gmail.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 4/19/2016 3:15:10 PM
Subject: Re: Question

---

Ms. Adams,

Since it's a fluff piece, the deadline is a bit more lax than normal. So I have about two weeks to develop it. (Of course, I'd work around the Governor's schedule. So if she had a brief window available three weeks from now, I'd fight on holding the segment back so that I could score the interview and really make the segment dynamic.)

You can reach me by calling (864) 423-0311.

--Daniel Natal

On Tue, Apr 19, 2016 at 3:11 PM, Adams, Chaney <ChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov> wrote:
Daniel,

What is your deadline? And what is the best number to reach you?

From: Daniel Natal [mailto:dinnatal@gmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 19, 2016 3:10 PM
To: Adams, Chaney
Subject: Question

Ms. Adams,

I was writing to ask about the astronomical unlikelihood that Governor Haley would consent to a brief, brief, brief interview for a piece by Upstate Business Journal.

I'm doing a video segment (a fluff piece, really) about "Little-Known Facts About Your Industry," where I'm interviewing a doctor, a police officer, a firefighter, a sanitation worker, the mayor of Greenville [Knox White], etc. It was only in putting together my notes that I thought it'd be a coup to ask someone of a much higher stature the same question I put to everyone else: "What factoid about your job does the general public not know about (and that you'd like them to know about)?"

It would just require a sentence or two.

Let me know if 1) The Governor is ever available for a brief two-minute interview and 2) If she'd consent to some nobody like me shoving a camera in her face for an utterly worthless fluff piece.

I fully understand the governor's tight schedule, and her pressing obligations. So I can only expect a boiler-plate rejection.

But if there's any hope at all (even the briefest glimmer), let me know.

Warmly,

--Daniel Natal