

Gov Nikki Haley,

This is a notice to you about how outraged your speech made me. You were a fool, a deer in the head-lites. While standing in front of the satellite TV system distributing your appearance; responding to Obama's State of the Union speech gave you every opportunity to de-frock Hillary. Your words; would'a, could'a, should'a sent her campaign to the gray granite gardens.

Instead, you took the GOP Establishment's marching orders and attacked our own candidate carrying the Republican Flag. In using those appointed words, the pre-approved response has given your political future a dirty pair of shoes.

Who, what, when, why were you so foolish as to prepare an attack on a controversial candidate or candidates? There isn't one candidate facing off for the GOP who would not make a great new President.

Why would you stand there and in so many words; tell the world of potential immigrants they should come to America. No one, no one, from any other country, contrary to your reassurance, is entitled to treat America as their better place for opportunity. Tell them to go home and retrieve their own government. Tell them to reassert themselves in their homeland and create an honest political system. Let them take home, a copy of the United States Constitution, Bill of Rights and the Ten Commandments. Create their own bit of what is a nation of opportunities and love. Send 'em home.

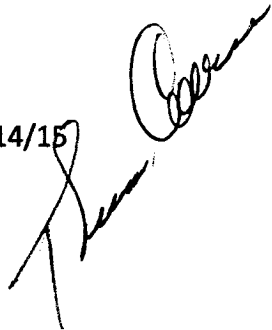

Today, I have found out your response to POTUS SoU, was written and approved by Paul Ryan, Mitch McConnell, and Reince. They represent the GOP Establishment. They have cheated. They have not played fair. "Fair" in the sense of not working against any of the GOP candidates of whom are seeking the Presidency of the United States. Remember; the GOP Establishment has cheated.

Backlash against migrant turns violent in Germany

BERLIN — Violence against Syrian asylum seekers spiked over the weekend with police Sunday reporting three different attacks in which six Syrian refugees had to be treated for injuries.

Attacks against asylum-seekers and migrant shelters have increased sharply in Germany in recent months as refugees surge into Europe seeking to escape war and poverty. Germany's interior ministry said there have been more than 570 crimes against refugee shelters so far this year, compared to 198 last year.

Two of the latest attacks, in Wismar and Magdeburg, were committed with baseball bats on Saturday.

Police in nearby Rostock said in a statement Sunday two Syrian men, who were not identified, were standing outside their shelter in Wismar on the Baltic Sea on Saturday night when a group of 20 persons approached them and started beating the refugees. The attackers fled and the two asylum seekers had to be taken to the hospital to be treated for injuries.

In Magdeburg, 30 people beat up two 26-year-olds and one 35-year-old Syrian man, who also had to be treated in the hospital. Police detained one 24-year-old suspect.

In a third attack, a 26-year-old Syrian man was injured during an attack on a Saturday night. The interior minister of Saxony, Markus Ulshammer, sharply condemned the "cowardly and cold-blooded attack" and said a far-right motive was likely, the German news agency dpa reported.

In Sebnitz near Hanau, a 43-year-old man detained for allegedly committing an arson attack on a home of an asylum seeking family from Montenegro early Sunday. Nobody was harmed in the attack.

Several arson attacks were also reported on designated future asylum shelters across Germany, among them an empty hotel in Dresden and a former youth club in
