Detail of The Nativity by Peter Paul Rubens (and Studio).
From the Bob Jones University Collection.

Although Rubens gained knowledge and inspiration from many artists, the dynamism and pageantry that characterize his painting are distinctively his and represent the apex of the high baroque. His contagious personality, artistic skills, and learned mind caused him to be in demand all over Europe, and his paintings became the standard by which all those who followed him would be judged. His work was so popular that he had to employ a studio workshop of over 100 apprentices to satisfy his patrons. Sir Peter Paul Rubens stands as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, baroque artist of the Golden Age.
