Public Notice
South Carolina Pork Board and the National
Pork Board

Sherry Garris, Pesticide Laboratory Supervisor with the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, recently reported the 1999-2000 pesticide residue testing results. The results show that our farmers are doing a good job in providing safe, wholesome food.

Safe Food

During FY 2000, the Pesticide Residue Section of the Food Laboratory performed 3,396 analyses on 1,132 samples. The report stated that 98.34% of the produce tested met food safety standards and were below the required tolerance levels set by the FDA.

Garris said, “South Carolina’s good compliance rate is because farmers follow very stringent rules and regulations set by the FDA. It’s our regulatory responsibility to make sure that everyone continues to meet those standards.”

The lab is responsible for pesticide residue testing of fruits and vegetables drawn from supermarkets and farmers markets statewide. Everything from apples to zucchini is analyzed to ensure the public of a safe food supply. Aside from tests on produce, the lab also tests pesticide residue in feed, soil, and some miscellaneous products submitted for analysis.

The Laboratory Division, located at 1101 Williams Street, performs tests on feeds, seeds, foods, cosmetics, and petroleum products through chemical, biological, and physical qualitative and quantitative analyses and testing technology to assure that goods meet acceptable standards of quality. The Division staffs a Food Laboratory, Feed Laboratory, Seed Laboratory, and Petroleum Products Laboratory.

The Division also registers animal and pet foods, frozen desserts, gasoline, and antifreeze; issues licenses for butterfat testers and milk samplers and weighmen; and grants permits to salvage food operations. Two to three thousand licenses, permits, and registrations are granted each year.

Goods and commodities sampled for the Laboratory are either official or submitted. Official samples are those which are taken for the purpose of monitoring compliance with the law or for investigation of complaints. Submitted samples are analyzed as a service to consumers, farmers, processors, and government agencies or research groups. Priority is given to emergency situations with human health implications and official samples collected for food safety protection programs.

Dr. Bill Brooks, Assistant Commissioner for Laboratory Services, said, “I’m proud of the work that Sherry and all of our Laboratory Division staff are doing. Their efforts protect consumers from unsafe products and assure an acceptable standard of quality for the people of the state.”

The South Carolina Department of Agriculture administers the Food and Cosmetic Act and Regulations; Commercial Feed Act and Regulations; Petroleum Products Law, Rules and Regulations; Antifreeze Law; Oleomargarine Law; Enriched Flour and Bread Law, Rules and Regulations; Rice Law, Rules and Regulations; Enriched Corn Meal & Corn Grits Law, Rules and Regulations; Milk Products/Imitations, Butterfat Content; Weight of Milk Law; Weights and Measures Law; Hazardous Substances Act; Seed Law and Noxious Weeds Law, Rules and Regulations; and the Frozen Dessert Law.

Markets

Consumers everywhere in the state are calling to ask what is available at the market now. One lady asked, “Where can I get sweet corn? Is there any at the Columbia State Farmers Market?”
Just call the Market News Service at 803-253-4040 for a recorded message.
If you decide to access the information from the recording, the first message will be a summary of that day’s report. The second message will be a longer, detailed listing of commodities available, volume, type of containers, varieties, and prices. Call in the morning for the previous day’s report and in the afternoon for the current day’s report.
Price and availability vary throughout the day, but the information reported by the Market News Service for South Carolina grown produce includes the prices quoted for buying in bulk wholesale at 9:00 a.m. each day. Because availability varies throughout the day and since a truckload of sweet corn can sell out in less than 10 minutes, consumers need to be there early, especially during this peak season!
In addition to the recorded message and the availability of live reports, the Market News Service also provides information through the SC Department of Agriculture website. Just log on to www.scd.a.state.sc.us and click on Produce available at the Columbia State Farmers Market. You will be taken directly to the current Columbia Market News Report.
For specific information about the Columbia State Farmers Market, call Lee Sowell, Market Manager, at 803-737-4664, the Greenville State Farmers Market, call Jack Watson, Market Manager, at 864-244-4023 or about the Pee Dee State Farmers Market in Florence, call Betty Boykin, Assistant Market Manager, at 843-665-5154.

Santee Cooper

Santee Cooper’s GOFER program has been around since 1990. It is the state’s largest used motor oil collection program targeting do-it-yourself oil changers. Working primarily with county recycling centers, municipal administrators and electric cooperatives, Santee Cooper picks up used oil at over 500 GOFER sites in every county in the state.
Last year, they collected approximately 1.6 million gallons of used oil. The oil is safely converted into electric power at a Santee Cooper generating station. Remember, it is against state law to dump used motor oil on the soil, in a ditch or in any body of water.
One gallon of used oil can contaminate 1 million gallons of freshwater. But two gallons of used oil can make enough electricity to power the average home for one day. Got used oil? Don’t dump it. GOFER it!
Call 1-800-753-2233 to talk with a Santee Cooper representative in the utility’s Give Oil for Energy Recovery (GOFER) program to set up a collection of your used oil. Or visit the GOFER web site at www.scofer.org.
