scstateparks Wildlife Wednesday featuring this armadillo at Lake Greenwood State Park. #DYK female female armadillos can delay their pregnancies in times of stress or until environmental conditions become favorable? While mating season is in July, the female may not become pregnant until November or later due to a process called "delayed implantation," where she delays the fertilized egg. 🐾 📷: @cats1216 schmeckricky Wait. Are armadillos even native to the southeast?? How'd this fella end up all the way over here??

at 20:32:17 on 7/01/2020 UTC

franyoung11 😊 they have arrived!! How cute pattycat44 We have a group of 4 of them that root outside in the backyard of our condo during the day. I think they might be juveniles because they are fairly small.

trolltoon I wish the armadillos and bears would stay out of my yard

mdbonfilio They are invasive. Thought they are supposed to be dispatched?

kinda_alright Not being a jerk but... are you asking us to fact check your post? What's up with the question mark? Do they delay pregnancy or not?

chanjmurphy419 @kinda_alright it's a question. The DYK at the beginning of the sentence is 'Did you know'..
